Snkl Studio strikes again! From the people who brought us TAL: Arctic, TAL: Arctic 2, TAL: Arctic 3 and TAL: Jungle comes another perfectly passable yet wholly unexceptional product guaranteed to make you feel your 99 cents or less was adequately recompensed. This time 'round, rather than mazes, it's very simple jigsaw-type puzzles we're solving. Do you enjoy jigsaw puzzles? Yeah, me neither, really. But it's alright to pass the time for a brief spell here and there, and with twenty increasingly large and mildly challenging puzzles to solve, it neither insults your wallet nor tries your patience. A single sitting might be a bit of a trial, though, unless you really do dig them jigsaws. I quite like Snkl. They make cheap, bare-bones products that function precisely as you suspect they will. No great shakes by any stretch of the imagination, but certainly nothing to go thumbing down in a fit of righteous rage. Even better value on sale. And you can get 100% Achievements simply by completing the game, which shouldn't take you much more than an hour. "Casual" gaming don't come much more casual than this , kids. Verdict: 5.5/10.
